

Conflict Transformation

Feeling stuck in a cycle of relational harm in your workplace, home, or classroom? This can be a training or can be multiple facilitated sessions to address specific issues. This work is tailored to your specific needs and/or level of knowledge and experience in handling relational harm within your organization. By establishing a common vision, participants can create a transformative process that produces a win-win outcome.

Past, present, and future are considered

- 1. Addressing past injustice
 - 2. Restoring equity for all
 - 3. Establishing a better future free of re-harm
 - 4. Learning skills to avoid common communication traps
- 1. Circle processes as standard practice

This can be a one-day interactive training aimed at equipping staff to handle relational harm such as gossip, mistrust, and insubordination. Our team can also provide ongoing support to work through issues needing outside facilitation. The amount of time needed depends on the number of participants and the nature of the conflict issues. Contact us to discuss your needs:

info@restorationmatters.org